The Nickel Market Launches in DTLA's Historic Core

(LOS ANGELES) September 19, 2016 - The Historic Core BID is pleased to announce the launch of The Nickel Market, a new weekly Sunday artisan market immediately adjacent to the Historic Core Sunday Farmers Market that hosts local DTLA and Los Angeles based vendors featuring crafts, fashion, vintage, furniture, home goods, handmade leather, jewelry live music. The market creates a synergy with already popular Farmers Market, plus local favorites like The Last Redstone and Grand Central Market, boosting foot traffic and events throughout the neighborhood. A free, family friendly, join us every Sunday from 9am - 2pm on 5th between Main and Spring to activate our streets and build our DTLA community. Vendor Applications are now open. The Nickel Market is organized by your Downtown neighbors with support from the Southland Farmers Market and the Historic Core BID.
